“The Importance of Trees”

1. I would be interested in hearing about the mental and physical benefits of people being in forests. --Karen Roof
2. Why do we take trees for granted?...our property feels like it's more important. What would you say about "changing the conservation paradigm?"--Looking at whole systems across boundaries?... and species? --Sally Palmer
3. Richard Powers' book “The Overstory” taught me a lot about trees and their vital importance to our planet. Have you read that book? I wonder if you think its science was helpful as part of a more complex novel about individuals. --Jean Hodges

“Tree Health vs. Soils and Conditions Below Ground”

4. I have heard . . . that tree health is primarily dependent on air quality, but trees are anchored in soil that gets polluted, eroded, etc. --Kathleen Knaus

5. A discussion on the underground network of a forest, AKA the "wood wide web," would be helpful. – Larry Strawser

6. Trees are the anchor barometers of life, and how they get water below ground and root stability basically reflects life potential above ground. Canopy (aligned with good tree health) is a major factor in good planning and infrastructure success. However, geospatial mapping of this tree architecture sucks (pun intended). – Pete Baston

“Planting Trees”

7. I'd like to know how much each of these organizations promote planting native trees.
--Janet Manning
8. What is the status of the plan to plant 1 billion trees? That many would make a difference. --Jonathan Ormes
9. I am curious if native trees are prioritized/promoted through urban and suburban reforestation programs. --Lisa Olsen

“Urban Forest Management”

10. Who typically enforces deforestation policies in urban areas? – Susan March

11. What do the panelists think of Denver's deficit of open space? – Gerard Frank

“Carbon Offsets”

12. Are carbon offsets and protection forests going to be discussed? --Irene McCahill

13. Are you willing to endorse, support, and encourage legislation that puts a price on carbon emissions? It's a popular and fast way to drive down emissions. Unlike regulatory solutions, the ENERGY INNOVATION AND CARBON DIVIDEND ACT is fast and effective. --Lesley LeFevre
